

Is your intended college/university approved for a CollegeReady scholarship?

Using the color-coded map below, find the state that your school is located in.

Click the link next to the appropriate accrediting body at the bottom of this page to visit that region's accreditation database.

If your intended school is listed as an accredited institution in that database, we can pay scholarships to that school!

Regional accrediting commissions are among the oldest accrediting organizations in the country. The United States is divided into six accreditation regions: New England, Middle States, North Central, Southern, Western and Northwest. Seven accrediting commissions operate in these regions. All regional accrediting commissions review entire institutions, as opposed to programs or schools within institutions.
